JETRO announces third annual Japan Textile Salon in NYC

JETRO has announced the third annual installment of the “Japan Textile Salon” to be held on January 21 – 22, 2020 in New York City. The salon is an innovative platform showcasing the latest textile sources, exhibiting a wide array of fabric mixes and cutting-edge production capabilities from Japan. Since first debuted in January 2018, the salon aims to provide an opportunity to connect the U.S. fashion industry with selective textile companies from Japan, carefully chosen from among the world’s top weavers, printing producers, designs studios and manufacturers with R&D capability.

Last year, the salon hosted 21 textile exhibitors, who demonstrated new techniques and the use of fabrications and materials including high-quality silk, swiss cotton and indigo pile jacquard. These companies displayed unique dyeing and weaving techniques and specialty items such as selvedge denim woven on old-fashioned power looms and a high-grade silk threading process, along with premium fabrics made with spun silk using advanced technology.

This year the event focuses on sustainability and eco-friendly textiles, showcasing 16 Japanese textile companies that will present local artisan craftsmanship.
